René Baptist Huysmans (1969 -) is a self-taught composer of musique concrète with a background in ethnolinguistics. He lives and works in Amsterdam and Berlin. Motivated by the Japanese-Brazilian composer Luiz Henrique Yudo and inspired by the availability of musical software and internet platforms such as SoundCloud, he started to compose electronic music as of 2011. Since 2013 his work has been released by the Greek internet label Etched Traumas and the Dutch underground label Motok. As of 2013, he began collaborating with the Scottish-English organist and composer Michael Bonaventure, embarking on a series of works for organ and fixed media electronics. His music is expressionistic and he is fascinated by new, as yet unheard sounds and textures. His work is often described as narrative and visually evocative. His works have been performed across Europe. Together with Luiz Henrique Yudo and Michael Bonaventure, he is a member of the composers collective MuizManz.
